Game of Truth or Dare Gets Wildly Out of Control Again

After 59 hang-up 911 calls in two days, police arrested a southern Nevada man they think made more than 3,600 phantom emergency calls during the past year. Henderson police spokesman Keith Paul said Thursday that Tuy Thai, 35, always denied making the calls or blamed them on others using his phone. Paul says Thai later told police his phone dialed 911 by itself. (AP)

News Unhinges Ohio Children

Workers in Cleveland rescued a 2-foot alligator before it froze to death in the city sewer system. The Plain Dealer reported Friday that the animal is recovering and will be kept until a permanent home can be found. Despite the popular urban legend about alligators in sewers, they've never heard of one being found. (AP)

'What Would You Do for a Klondike Bar?' Answered

Scranton, Pa., police say 24-year-old Steven Johnson was drunk when he walked into a stranger's home, cooked a steak and helped himself to some clams, crab and shrimp from the fridge while the home's occupants slept soundly on the living room couch. The man on the sofa woke up and called police after watching Johnson head out the door with some leftovers, a box of Klondike bars and bottles of rum and vodka. (AP)

AT LEAST IT WASN'T 'CALL ME MAYBE': People climb a statue Saturday in Rome's Piazza del Popolo to take pictures of a huge flash mob dancing to "Gangnam Style." Nearly 5,000 people, most of them teenagers, took part in the event, which started at exactly 4:45 p.m. and lasted the length of the song by South Korean rapper Psy.

Fight on Limiting Filibusters Looms

Senate Democrats say they can change rules without GOP support

Washington

A potentially bitter fight over Democratic efforts to curb filibusters is threatening to inflame partisan tensions in the Senate, even as President Barack Obama and Republicans explore whether they can compromise on top-tier issues such as debt reduction and taxes.

A potential showdown vote to limit Senate filibusters would not come until January. Democrats are threatening to resort to a seldom-used procedure that could let them change the rules without GOP support, all but inviting Republican retaliation.

Frustrated by the GOP's growing use of filibusters, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid is considering a Senate vote in the new year to limit their use.

"I think that the rules have been abused and that we're going to work to change them," Reid, D-Nev., told reporters this past week. "We're not going to do away with the filibuster, but we're going to make the Senate a more meaningful place, we're going to make it so that we can get things done."

Democrats say a vote to change the rules would require a simple majority of senators, and they argue that the Constitution lets Senate majorities write new rules for the chamber. That, in effect, would mean Democrats could change the rules over GOP opposition, assuming 51 Democrats go along.

Republicans say they filibuster legislation because Reid blocks them from offering amendments. They also note that Senate rules require that the body's procedures can be changed only by a two-thirds majority. ALAN FRAM (AP)

'Fiscal Cliff' Ahead

Filibusters are a procedural tactic that lets the minority party block bills that lack the support of at least 60 senators. Democrats seem likely to command a 55-45 majority in the new Senate, making 60 a difficult hurdle. The fight over curbing filibusters is looming as President Barack Obama and GOP leaders prepare to hunt for compromise Tuesday on the "fiscal cliff" — the nearly $700 billion worth of tax increases and spending cuts next year that automatically begin in January unless lawmakers head them off. CRAIG RUTTLE/AP

Neighbors help move deep sand Sunday from a house in the Rockaway Park neighborhood in New York's Queens borough in the wake of Superstorm Sandy.

Power Problems Linger in N.Y., N.J.

Weeks after Sandy, thousands still wait for their electricity

New York

Utility companies in New York and New Jersey closed in on restoring power Sunday to the last of the 8.5 million who lost it during the superstorm two weeks ago and a subsequent nor'easter, but tens of thousands of homes and businesses were too damaged to receive electricity, and delays and a dearth of updates have angered residents and government officials alike.

Power problems remained unresolved on New York's Long Island, where about 300 people protested Saturday at an office of the beleaguered Long Island Power Authority. About 130,000 of its customers still didn't have power Sunday, LIPA said, not including the homes and businesses that were too damaged.

"Each day you get a different answer from them," Carrie Baram, 56, said of LIPA. Monday will mark two weeks since she's had power at her home in Long Island.

Most homes and businesses in New Jersey that lost power during the superstorm should have the lights back this weekend.

But thousands in the barrier islands will be without electricity indefinitely because their homes remain too damaged to power up.

Utilities say about 19,000 customers are without power, including some who lost service during the nor'easter. That's down from a peak of 2.7 million in the state during the superstorm. (AP)

Nowhere to Go

Displaced New Jersey residents are calling real estate offices, looking to rent a home or apartment while they figure out what to do about their storm-ravaged homes. Others are joining waiting lists at hotels filled with evacuees and out-of-state utility workers. Demand, real estate agents said, far outstripped supply. (AP)

Syrian Rebels Settle Unity Deal

Under international pressure, opposition forms new coalition

Doha, Qatar

Syrian anti-government groups struck a deal Sunday under intense international pressure to form a new opposition leadership that will include representatives from the country's disparate factions fighting to topple President Bashar Assad's regime, activists said.

The opposition has been deeply divided for months despite the relentless bloodshed in Syria and repeated calls from their Western and Arab supporters to create a cohesive and representative leadership that could present a single conduit for foreign aid. The agreement, reached Sunday after more than a week of meetings in the Qatari capital of Doha, could boost efforts to secure international support — and potentially weapons — that will be crucial in the war to oust Assad.

"We have agreed on the broad platform and all [opposition] parties, without any exception, support this initiative," said Ali Sadr el-Din Bayanouni, who took part in the talks. He said the new leadership will be called the Syrian National Coalition for Opposition and Revolutionary Forces.

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton harshly criticized the largest current opposition group, the Syrian National Council, late last month and called for new leadership that can rally broader support.

Ripples of Conflict

Israel was drawn into the fighting in neighboring Syria for the first time Sunday, firing warning shots across the border after an errant mortar shell landed near an Israeli military installation in the Golan Heights. It was a reminder of how easily the Syrian civil war — already spilling across borders with Turkey, Lebanon and Jordan — could explode into a regional conflagration. Israeli officials threatened even tougher retaliation if attacks persist. (AP)

In a bid to be more representative and curb the influence of exiles considered out of touch with events on the ground, the new coalition will include activists from inside Syria as well as rebel commanders.

It will also include representatives from the SNC, which initially resisted the idea of a new leadership council, viewing it as a threat to its claim of primacy. After some wrangling, the SNC secured 22 of the 60 seats in the new coalition.

Tunisian Foreign Minister Rafik Abdessalem said the new coalition "is a major achievement on the road to a new Syria."

Still, all opposition groups and figures taking part in the Doha meeting rejected any dialogue with Assad's regime. ABDULLAH REBHY (AP)

Greeks Protest Vote on Budget Crucial to Loans

Athens, Greece

About 15,000 protesters converged on the Greek capital's main square outside Parliament on Sunday, ahead of a vote by lawmakers on the 2013 budget that would once more cut pensions and salaries so Greece can qualify for its next vital batch of rescue loans.

With the coalition government still holding a comfortable majority in the 300-member Parliament and all three coalition parties vowing to back the legislation, the bill is expected to pass.

The vote comes four days after a bill of deep spending cuts and tax hikes for 2013-14 squeaked past with a narrow majority in the Parliament following deep disagreements among the coalition members. (AP)

Who Is Paula Broadwell?

Paula Broadwell is a 40-year-old graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and an Army Reserve officer. In 2008, while pursuing a doctorate, Broadwell decided to write a case study of Petraeus' leadership style. Aides were stunned by the close access that Broadwell was granted. Her efforts led to a biography: "All In: The Education of Gen. David Petraeus," which she co-authored with Vernon Loeb, the local editor of The Washington Post. She is married with two young sons.

DAVID PETRAEUS' ASCENT

Petraeus, a 1974 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, joined the ranks of warrior diplomats by overseeing a rewrite of the Army's counterinsurgency manual as America's strategy in Iraq was adrift. President George W. Bush authorized a troop surge to implement the strategy and sent Petraeus to oversee it. President Barack Obama asked Petraeus to take over the Afghan war in June 2010, and he was named CIA director after he retired. He has been married 38 years to Holly Petraeus, with whom he has two adult children. (TWP/AP)

Lawmakers demand details about an FBI investigation into Petraeus' affair

Washington

Members of Congress said Sunday they want to know more about the FBI investigation that revealed an extramarital affair between ex-CIA director David Petraeus and his biographer, questioning when the retired general popped up in the FBI inquiry, whether national security was compromised and why they weren't told sooner.

"We received no advanced notice. It was like a lightning bolt," said Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein of California, who heads the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The FBI was investigating harassing emails sent by Petraeus biographer Paula Broadwell to a second woman. That probe of Broadwell's emails revealed the affair between Broadwell and Petraeus. The FBI contacted Petraeus and other officials, and Director of National Intelligence James Clapper asked Petraeus to resign.

Petraeus resigned while lawmakers still had questions about the Sept. 11 attack on the U.S. Consulate and CIA base in Benghazi, Libya, that killed four Americans, including U.S. Ambassador Chris Stevens.

Lawmakers said it's possible that Petraeus will still be asked to appear on Capitol Hill to testify about what he knew about the U.S. response to that incident.

Rep. Peter King, chairman of the House Homeland Security Committee, said on CNN's "State of the Union" that the circumstances of the FBI probe smacked of a cover-up by the White House.

"It seems this [the investigation] has been going on for several months and, yet, now it appears that they're saying that the FBI didn't realize until Election Day that General Petraeus was involved. It just doesn't add up," said King, R-N.Y.

Petraeus, 60, quit Friday after acknowledging an extramarital relationship.

The affair will be the subject of meetings Wednesday involving congressional intelligence committee leaders, FBI Deputy Director Sean Joyce and CIA Deputy Director Michael Morell.

Feinstein said on "Fox News Sunday" that she first learned of Petraeus' affair from the media last week, and confirmed it Friday with Petraeus. She said so far there was no indication that national security was breached.

Still, Feinstein called the news "a heartbreak" for her personally and U.S. intelligence operations, and said she didn't understand why the FBI didn't give her a heads up as soon as Petraeus' name emerged in the investigation. (AP)

What Prompted the Investigation?

The author who had an affair with Gen. David Petraeus sent harassing emails to a woman who was a social liaison to the military's Joint Special Operations Command, a senior U.S. military official said Sunday. Jill Kelley, 37, received the emails from Paula Broadwell that triggered an FBI investigation. That probe led agents to uncover Broadwell's relationship with Petraeus, an official said Saturday. Concerned about the possibility of a security breach, the FBI brought the matter up with Petraeus, according to the official.

What Does This Mean for The Benghazi Inquiry?

Gen. David Petraeus had been scheduled to appear before congressional committees on Thursday to testify on what the CIA knew and what the agency told the White House before, during and after the Sept. 11 attack in Benghazi that left four Americans dead. Deputy director Michael Morell was expected to testify in place of Petraeus. But officials didn't rule out the possibility that Congress will compel Petraeus to testify about Benghazi later. (AP/THE WASHINGTON POST)

"I don't see how in the world you can find out what happened in Benghazi before, during and after the attack if Gen. Petraeus doesn't testify."

— SEN. LINDSEY GRAHAM, R-S.C., A MEMBER OF THE SENATE ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE, ON SUNDAY DISCUSSING WHY GEN. DAVID PETRAEUS MAY TESTIFY ABOUT THE DEADLY SEPT. 11 ATTACK IN BENGHAZI, EVEN THOUGH HE'S RELINQUISHED HIS JOB

RUMOR FACT CHECK

After Gen. David Petraeus resigned on Friday, rumors began to circulate about a letter in the New York Times magazine in July. The question, titled "My Wife's Lover," submitted to "The Ethicist" column was from a husband struggling with his wife's affair with a "government executive." It fueled speculation that Paula Broadwell's husband, Scott, wrote it about his wife and Petraeus. But a Times magazine editor tweeted Sunday that the column "is NOT about the Petraeus affair, based on our factchecking. Strange, I know." (EXPRESS)

Ballston and Virginia Square stations, above, will be closed for track work Monday.

Holiday Update

Sunday was Veterans Day, which means that Monday is being treated as a holiday for federal workers and plenty of others. Here are some things you need to know to get around. MARK BERMAN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Metro Weekend Work

Metrorail will run a Saturday holiday schedule, opening at 5 a.m. and closing at midnight.

Metrobus will run a Saturday supplemental schedule, which means some routes won't run.

Metro also has work planned for three lines until the system closes at midnight Monday.

On the Orange Line, work will close the Ballston and Virginia Square stations, with buses replacing trains between East Falls Church and Clarendon.

Orange Line trains also will single-track between East Falls Church and Vienna, which means you should expect headaches if you're traveling west of Clarendon.

Green Line trains will single-track between Greenbelt and College Park. Red Line trains will single-track between Grosvenor and Friendship Heights.

MARC/VRE

There will be no Maryland Area Regional Commuter train service Monday.

The Virginia Railway Express will not run Monday.

Arlington Transit

Arlington Transit will run ART routes 41, 42, 51, 77 and 87 on Saturday schedules. No other ART routes will operate.

DASH

Alexandria's DASH system will run normal weekday service on Monday.

Fairfax Connector

The Fairfax Connector is running a holiday weekday schedule Monday.

Ride On

Montgomery County's Ride On service will run a modified holiday schedule.

TheBus

TheBus in Prince George's County will run mostly normal service Monday, but routes 51, 52 and 53 won't operate.

Off-Duty Bus Driver Shot Near Anacostia Station

Washington

Operating a bus in parts of the District can be hazardous, and the latest example came Friday night when a driver who had just finished work was struck by a bullet.

The off-duty driver was hit near the Anacostia Metro station, a terminus for several bus routes. As the driver was walking on Howard Road SE about 9 p.m., a shot was fired during a dispute among youths, Metro spokesman Dan Stessel said. The bus operator, who was not believed to be the target, was hit in the leg. The wound was not considered life-threatening, Stessel said.

He said authorities believed that the shot came from Shannon Place, which intersects Howard Road near the station. No information was available about any possible arrests.

Rocks have been thrown at buses in parts of the region for years, but Metro has said the problem is particularly acute in parts of Southeast Washington.

Attention has recently been focused on incidents in the neighborhood around Robinson Place, less than a mile south of the Anacostia station.

Buses on the W6 and W8 routes have been frequent targets, according to Metro, and service cutbacks have been proposed. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

In Va., Obama Honors Veterans

President highlights Sept. 11 generation at Arlington Cemetery

Arlington

President Barack Obama paid tribute at a Veterans Day ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery to "the heroes over the generations who have served this country of ours with distinction."

He said the wreath he laid earlier at Tomb of the Unknowns was intended to remember every service member who has worn a uniform and served the nation.

In a speech at the Memorial Amphitheater during the brisk, sunny morning, Obama said America will never forget the sacrifice made by its veterans and their families.

"No ceremony or parade, no hug or handshake is enough to truly honor that service," the president said, adding that the country must commit every day "to serving you as well as you've served us."

He spoke of the Sept. 11 generation, "who stepped forward when the Towers fell, and in the years since have stepped into history, writing one of the greatest chapters in military service our country has ever known. You've toppled a dictator and battled an insurgency in Iraq. You pushed back the Taliban and decimated al-Qaeda in Afghanistan. You delivered justice to Osama bin Laden."

MATT MCCLAIN/FTWP

Jaedyn Anderson, 6, visits the grave of his uncle, Army Cpl. Andy Anderson, at Arlington National Cemetery on Sunday.

Obama also said this was the first Veterans Day in a decade with no American troops fighting and dying in Iraq, and that a decade of war in Afghanistan is coming to a close. Over the next few years, he said, more than 1 million service members will make the transition to civilian life. As they come home, Obama urged their fellow citizens to always be there for them.

Later, the president and first lady Michelle Obama and Vice President Joe Biden and his wife, Jill Biden, greeted families in the cemetery's Section 60, home to graves of service members killed in Afghanistan and Iraq. STACY A. ANDERSON (AP)

Long-Dry Town Votes to Allow Alcohol Sales

Damascus, Md.

Restaurants in the Montgomery County town of Damascus are getting ready to sell wine and beer.

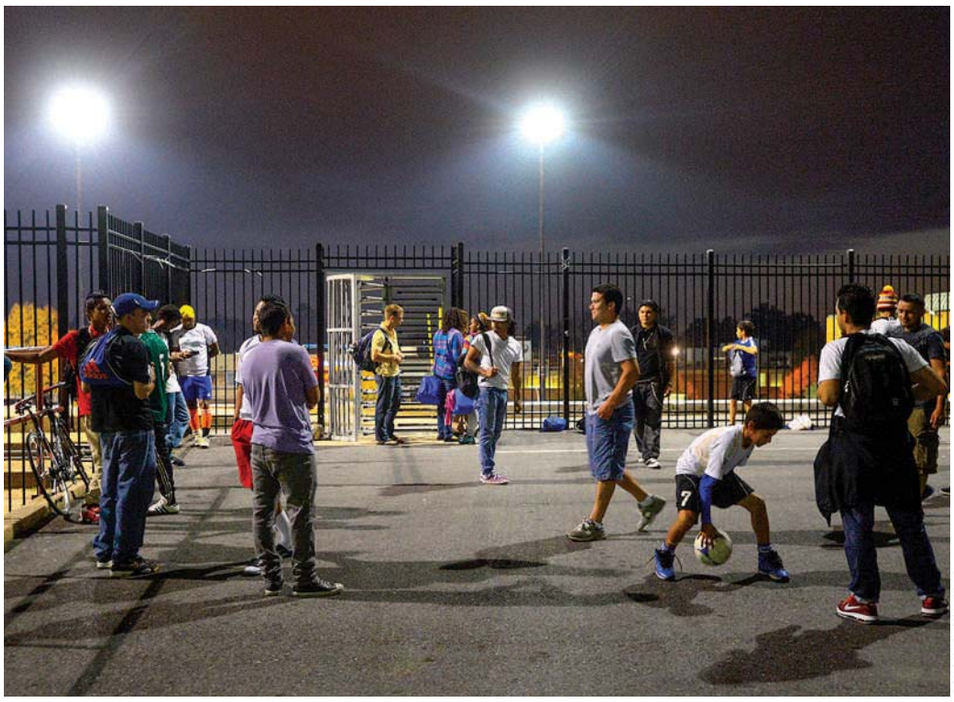

The Baltimore Sun reports the town of just over 15,000 voted this week to allow alcohol sales. Damascus had been one of the few dry towns left in Maryland, and voters decided against allowing alcohol sales in votes in 1933, 1976, 1984, 1992 and 1996.

This year the referendum question on alcohol was put on the ballot by the state's General Assembly.

The residents' vote allows restaurants to apply for a license to serve wine and beer, but only to customers who are seated.

The vote leaves in effect a ban on the opening of bars and the sale of hard liquor. (AP)

Lose-Win Situation: Libertarian Bruce Majors says he is happy despite losing the election last week for the District of Columbia's seat in Congress. Avoid the Black Friday crowds like this one last year at Macy's in New York.

Shop Now, Relax On Black Friday

Beat the holiday rush by doing your shopping a bit early

Personal Finance

Come Thanksgiving Day, it's always a question: Will you be in line well before midnight to buy a door-busting bargain on Black Friday?

With stores offering holiday price matches and free shipping options from Wal-Mart, Target and other major retailers, it's easy to beat the rush and skip Black Friday this holiday season.

Don't Wait

The shopping season is starting earlier, with Target, Wal-Mart, Best Buy and Toys R Us rolling out deals for the entire period, not just one day or even one month. That means deals will change from week to week, and using price guarantees and shipping promotions at the right time will help you save big. Pay attention to fliers, online prices and the timing of purchases.

Use the Price Matches

Target and Best Buy are matching prices offered online by rivals including Amazon and Wal-Mart. The goal is to convince shoppers that they can get everything they need at the lowest price at one location. "They are trying to combat showrooming, which is when people come to the store, look at items and then call them up on Amazon," said Jody Rohlena, senior editor of ShopSmart magazine. She suggests visiting PriceGrabber.com for price comparisons.

Gift Card Cop-Out

Because of the holiday price-matching programs, many retailers are expected to lose money on some big-ticket items that are priced lower elsewhere. That means November and December is the best time to look for sales (not January, after you've received your gift card). KATHERINE BOYLE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Free Shipping

Last year, 92.5 percent of online retailers offered free shipping for a portion of the holiday season, according to the National Retail Federation's Shop.org. It's expected to be the same this year. There are retailers including Nordstrom, L.L. Bean and Zappos.com that always offer free shipping with no minimum purchase. But check out Freeshipping.org to find out whether your favorite retailer is offering free shipping or to learn about promotions on select items. (AP)

Dynamo Upend United

Black and Red face uphill battle at home for MLS Cup berth

Major League Soccer

Given the deteriorating circumstances, D.C. United would have been elated to be tied with the Houston Dynamo at halftime in the first leg of the MLS Eastern Conference finals Sunday. Instead, an ailing club that had defied odds and skeptics the past two months was, incredibly, leading by a goal.

But United's one half of survival and joy was followed by 45 minutes of hell in an ocean of orange at sold-out BBVA Compass Stadium.

Beset by injuries, road weariness and defensive breakdowns, United conceded three goals after the break and dropped the opener of the total-goals series, 3-1.

Rookie Nick DeLeon's goal jeopardized Houston's season-long unbeaten streak at its new downtown cauldron, but Andre Hainault, Will Bruin and Kofi Sarkodie answered after the break as the Dynamo improved to 9-0-1 all-time at home against United.

United will head home for the final leg next Sunday at RFK Stadium with severe injury issues. Leading scorer Chris Pontius, defensive midfielder Marcelo Saragosa and center back Brandon McDonald left the game and appear questionable for the finale.

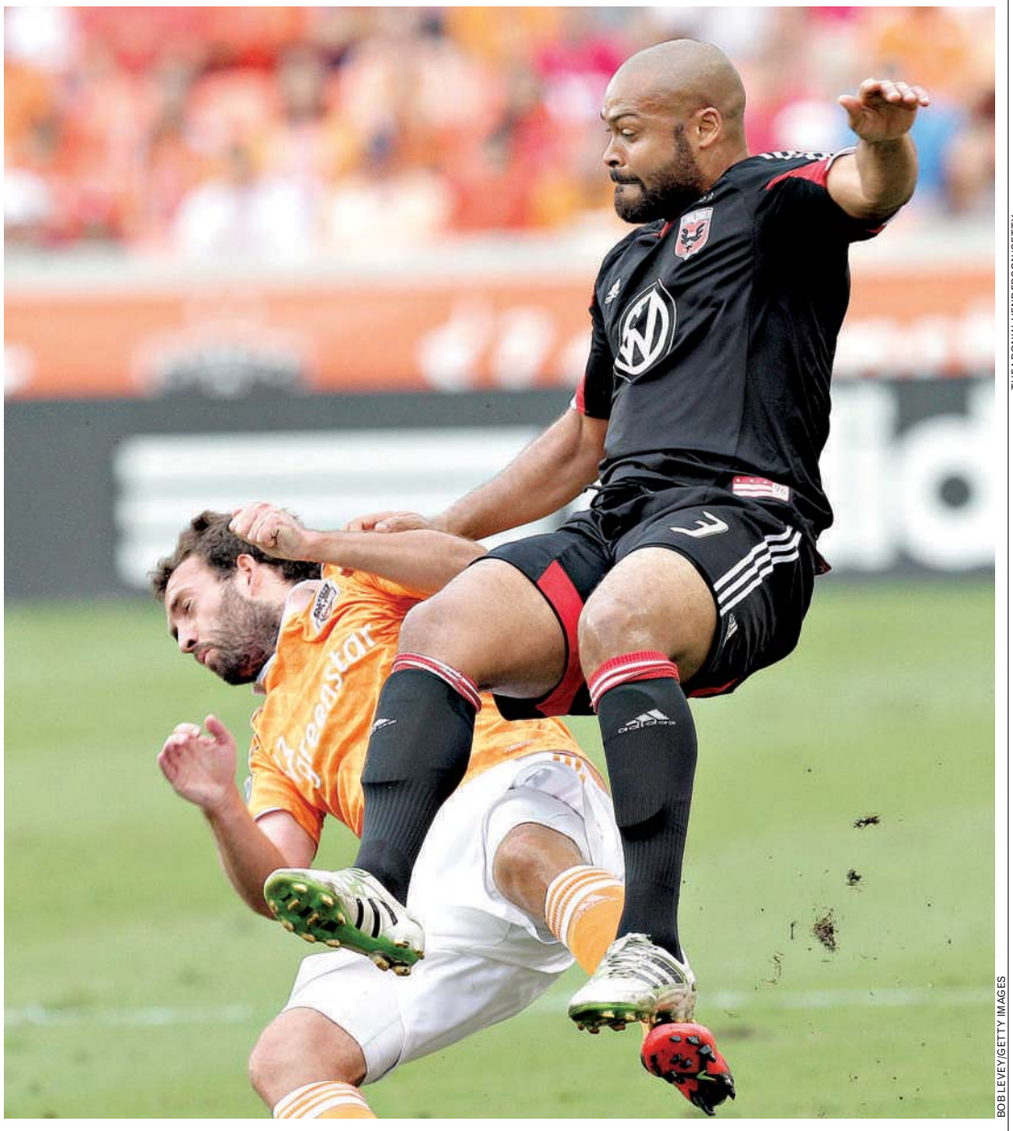

United's personnel problems began in the 12th minute when Pontius departed with an aggravated groin muscle. Saragosa departed in the 40th minute with a hamstring injury and was replaced by fellow Brazilian Raphael Augusto.

Five minutes passed before he was involved in a controversial sequence, touching the ball around Hainault and being yanked down by the Canadian just beyond the box. Referee Ricardo Salazar's whistle remained silent. What should have been a straight red card instead turned into a Houston counter that ended with Joe Willis making a falling save.

United's bench fumed. At halftime, Salazar pointed at goalkeepers coach Pat Onstad from a distance to leave the field.

Houston equalized six minutes into the last half. Off a quick restart, Boniek Garcia rushed unmarked into the left side of the penalty area and crossed to Hainault for a simple finish.

Analyst: Not Your Typical Offense

ESPN's Hasselbeck wonders if Redskins are misusing RGIII

The Redskins

Washington Redskins coach Mike Shanahan and his son, offensive coordinator Kyle Shanahan, have been widely praised this season for their handling of rookie quarterback Robert Griffin III.

The Shanahans crafted an offensive system for Griffin that is a blend of elements more commonly seen in the college game — such as the spread offense, the pistol formation and the triple option — along with more conventional NFL components, like the West Coast passing game and the zone-blocking scheme for the running game utilized for years by teams coached by Mike Shanahan.

Former NFL quarterback Tim Hasselbeck said Friday that what the Redskins are doing with Griffin generally has worked. But Hasselbeck, now an NFL analyst for ESPN, also said he has begun to wonder if the Redskins are overemphasizing the college-style elements of their offense and thus failing to take full advantage of Griffin's accuracy as a passer.

NICK WASS/AP

Washington Redskins quarterback Robert Griffin III talks with Redskins offensive coordinator Kyle Shanahan during their loss to the Panthers Nov. 4 at FedEx Field.

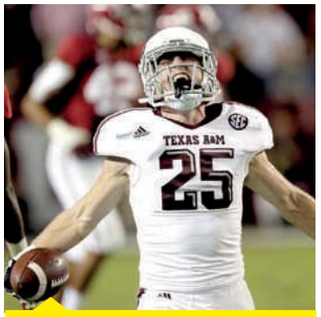

"We've gotten to the point where you have to wonder about the direction of the offense," Hasselbeck said. "They have all these atypical NFL concepts. They like to repeat concepts. But when you do that, you're not stretching the field. You're not making the defense defend the entire field. One of the reasons it works in college is because the first guy gets open. But when the first guy is not open in the NFL, you have to be able to get to the next guy."

Hasselbeck said he wonders if the college-style elements to the offense are limiting Griffin's passing by not giving him enough receiving options on many plays and not forcing opposing defenses to defend the entire field.

Griffin and the Redskins have been highly productive on offense for most of the season. The Redskins are ranked second in the NFL in rushing offense and seventh in the league in total offense, based on yards gained. They're 10th in the league in scoring offense. Griffin has become one of the sport's most popular players and is the league's 10th-rated passer.

But the offense has had a tougher time lately. They're on a three-game losing streak and are 3-6 at their bye week, in last place in the NFC East. MARK MASKE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Ravens Obliterate Raiders, 55-20

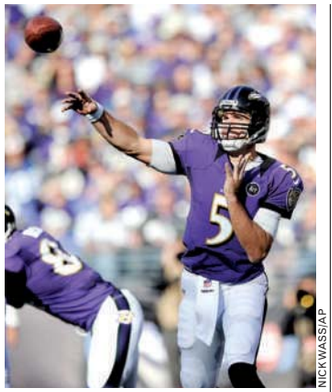

Flacco has huge day; team sets franchise scoring record in win

NFL

Joe Flacco led a record-setting day for the Baltimore Ravens, who scored touchdowns at a dizzying rate in several different ways.

Flacco threw for 341 yards and three scores, and Baltimore set a club mark for points in a 55-20 rout of the Oakland Raiders on Sunday.

The Ravens (7-2) scored on six of their first seven possessions against the struggling Raiders (3-6), who have yielded at least 40 points in two straight games for the first time since 1962. The 55 points tied an Oakland record for points allowed, set in 1961 and matched in 1981.

NICK WASS/AP

Ravens QB Joe Flacco threw for 341 yards and three touchdowns in the win.

Baltimore led 27-10 at halftime. In the third quarter, Flacco threw touchdown passes of 47 and 20 yards to Torrey Smith, and holder Sam Koch scored on a fake field goal to make it 48-17.

In the fourth quarter, Jacoby Jones took a kickoff 105 yards for a 55-20 lead. Baltimore's previous record for points in a game was 48, against Detroit in December 2009.

It was a rare blowout for the AFC North-leading Ravens, who won their previous five games by a total of 23 points. Baltimore has 15 straight home wins, the longest current streak in the NFL.

Carson Palmer went 29 for 45 for 368 yards and two touchdowns for Oakland. Playing without injured running backs Darren McFadden and Mike Goodson, the Raiders gained only 72 yards on the ground.

Baltimore didn't punt until the third quarter, and even that turned out well. Phillip Adams fumbled, the Ravens recovered the ball and Flacco promptly threw a touchdown pass to Smith. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

'Call of Duty: Black Ops II' flashes forward in a risky move for the franchise

Video Games

When the latest installment in the wildly popular "Call of Duty" video game franchise is released Tuesday, it will transport fans to a completely new place: the future. Setting half of "Call of Duty: Black Ops II" in the year 2025 could be the riskiest gambit yet for the shoot-'em-up series known for its relentless past-and-present realism.

"Black Ops II" (for Playstation 3, Xbox 360, PC and, in December, Wii U) flip-flops between the clandestine Cold War of yesteryear and a cutthroat conflict in the near future where cyber-terrorism, drones and souped-up rifles that can peek through walls serve as everyday instruments of warfare. It's a bold leap for a franchise that's spent the past nine years firmly rooted in an unflinching, albeit "Rambo"-esque, reality.

"The new setting gave everyone in the studio a creative freedom we didn't have before," says Mark Lamia, head of "Black Ops" developer Treyarch. "We want our games to have that plausible, grounded feeling, but make no mistake: We'll err on the side of entertainment every time. It is a game [and] the game has to be fun."

The flash-forward won't merely affect the story-driven, single-player campaign. Robotic tanks, electrifying grenades, flying drones and other high-tech doodads are being added to the arsenals of "Black Ops" soldiers. The change will undoubtedly alter the landscape of the multiplayer mode, the franchise's addictive feature that keeps gamers coming back.

Despite the fact the "Call of Duty" series began as a World War II shooter before gaining unprecedented success when it morphed into a modern-day interactive action flick, the developers at Treyarch aren't fearful of alienating the legions of die-hard fans who helped make "Call of Duty" the most unstoppable force in the gaming world. (Last year's "Call of Duty: Modern Warfare 3" shattered entertainment industry records by selling 6.5 million copies and earning more than $400 million within 24 hours.)

The game-makers enlisted military analyst and "Wired for War" author Peter W. Singer to serve as an overseer who could guide the developers away from simply creating science fiction. The first rule? No laser guns, at least not in the hands of soldiers. Another real-world flourish included casting China as a geopolitical superpower opposite the United States.

To maintain the cinematic sensation of earlier games, "Dark Knight Rises" screenwriter David S. Goyer helped guide the story.

Goyer recommended that developers create a "Call of Duty" game with a branching narrative, one that shifts and changes depending on players' actions — including having multiple endings — a franchise first.

"Obviously, the 'Call of Duty' franchise is hugely successful, but franchises can only remain successful if you keep innovating," Goyer says. "No franchise can last forever." DERRIK J. LANG (AP)

ACTIVISION

In "Call of Duty: Black Ops II," gamers switch between a familiar, Cold War setting and futuristic high-tech battles set in 2025.

25%

U.S. sales of new video games and hardware fell 25 percent in October, according to the NPD Group. The drop marks the 11th straight month of declining sales, which could be attributed to gamers awaiting the big holiday releases, such as "Call of Duty: Black Ops II." Overall, sales fell to $755.5 million from $1 billion a year earlier. (AP)

"The new setting gave everyone in the studio a creative freedom we didn't have before."

— MARK LAMIA, HEAD OF "BLACK OPS II" DEVELOPER TREYARCH, ON THE GAME'S FUTURISTIC STORY.

More Than Meets the Eye? Mark Wahlberg, roll out. "Transformers" director Michael Bay says the 41-year-old actor will star in the franchise's fourth film. Bay called Wahlberg the "perfect guy to reinvigorate the franchise and carry on the Transformers' legacy" in a post on his blog. "Transformers 4" is scheduled to be released by Paramount Pictures on June 27, 2014. Bay has hinted that the next film will take the series in a new direction, but he hasn't elaborated. (AP)

Stephanie Schmitt, Matthew Weiner

Stephanie, 23, is a communications associate. Matt, 35, is an audio engineer. They live in Silver Spring.

THE MAIN EVENT: They're getting hitched at the exclusive Mansion on O Street on June 29, 2013.
HOW THEY MET: When she moved to D.C., he was her housemate at her first sublet.
FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "He was a handsome older man who would never go for a young'un like me." "She was a sexy young thing who would never be interested in an old, haggard gent like myself."
FIRST DATE: A hike in Great Falls.
HOW HE PROPOSED: After a 15-mile bike ride on a 100-degree day in D.C.
MOST HATED CLOTHING ITEM: "Some of her fanny packs are a bit dorky."
THEIR SONG: The classic song "Tonight You Belong to Me." "Matt is a musician, and during our first summer together, we recorded a cover."
MOST STUPID FIGHT: When she closed a door too quickly "and nearly clipped the cat's tail," Matt says.
WITH INFINITE FUNDS: Stephanie would rent out the White House for their reception.

Jeff Geer, Renée Maurer

Jeff, 43, is a sales training manager. Renée, 40, is a museum curator. They will live in D.C.

THE MAIN EVENT: They wed Nov. 3 at a restaurant and farm overlooking the Potomac.
HOW THEY MET: Match.com. After a few witty emails, they decided to meet for drinks at Central, one of Renée's favorite restaurants.
FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "I hoped the brunette reading the book would be my date."
FIRST DATE: The drinks quickly turned into a meal of lobster burgers and frites. "I like how we both agreed to splurge," Renée says.
HOW HE PROPOSED: A concert at the Kennedy Center, champagne and roses at her apartment, and dinner at Central to celebrate.
THEIR SONG: "Let's Stay Together" by Al Green. "The song is on the wedding playlist," Jeff says. Also, "Renée is letting me play the 'Hokie Pokie,' since I went to Virginia Tech."
MOST HATED CLOTHING ITEM: His Cowboys shirt. "As a good Maryland girl, I don't like the Cowboys."
MMM, CAKE: Their guests noshed on pumpkin, apple and pecan pies; the bride and groom got a chocolate-peanut-butter cake.

Alexandra Grillo, Mike Rowshandel

Alex and Mike, both 27, are consultants. They live in Rosslyn.

THE MAIN EVENT: They tied the knot Nov. 3 at a Catholic church on Capitol Hill, with their reception at a plush Georgetown hotel.
HOW THEY MET: Depending who you ask, middle school (Mike) or high school (Alex). After years in the friend zone, they began dating their senior year.
FIRST DATE: Dinner at Carrabba's.
FIRST KISS: At a Halloween party. He was dressed as Shrek, and she was dressed as french fries. "Super romantic," she says.
HOW HE PROPOSED: At sunrise at the Outer Banks with their puppy, a breakfast picnic and a scrapbook of their nine years together.
MOST STUPID FIGHT: "My belief that meat was the best source of protein versus beans caused quite the controversy," Mike says.

B.I.O. By Invitation Only If you'd like to see your wedding or commitment ceremony in B.I.O., send your favorite informal photograph (wacky is fine, but please don't send a formal engagement shot), plus your names and ceremony date to weddings@readexpress.com. Please contact us at least one month before your wedding. We'll get back to you with questions.

"Hey @PapaJohns just charge me twenty cents more and give your employees health care! How great would that be!?"

—@WYSKIDA reacts to news that the CEO of the pizza company said he'd be cutting his employees' hours and raising prices on his product due to Obamacare.

"My president is black, my senator is a lesbian and my congressman is gay. This is not your grandparents' America, and I'm ok with that."

—@TORIDYKES, a Wisconsin resident, is feeling good about the direction of the country following the election of Democrat Mark Pocan to the U.S. House of Representatives and Democrat Tammy Baldwin to the U.S. Senate.

"The best way to describe the performance? Lots of green screen and graphics straight out of Encarta 95. The result? A visually cringe worthy experience, especially when her band got lost amidst random ass imagery of parallelograms, Roman columns, the ocean, and of course, diamonds."

—CONSEQUENCEOFSOUND.NET thought Rihanna's performance of "Diamonds" on NBC's "Saturday Night Live" was a bit too visually psychedelic.

"How amazing is it to see Nas in a commercial ad campaign?"

—NECOLEBITCHIE.COM is a fan of the new commercial featuring the Queensbridge, N.Y., rapper and his father, jazz musician Olu Dara, for the Gap.

"Amazing day at [White Hart Lane] tonight. Thank you guys for everythings spurs fans tonight were awesome. Thank you."

—@FMUAMBA, a midfielder for Bolton in the Barclay's Premier League, thanked the crowd for a standing ovation at halftime of Tottenham's 3-1 win at home to Maribor Thursday, after returning to the exact spot on the field where he collapsed because of cardiac arrest during an FA Cup match in March.

Horoscope

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Timing isn't everything today, but it is perhaps the single most important aspect of a current assignment. Keep your eye on the clock.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) It will be up to you to delve into the most sensitive issues today, but you can do so with respect for the most involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your attraction to someone outside of your normal circle of friends and loved ones is based on something you do not entirely understand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may be surprised to learn how far you will go today to secure your own safety. You are capable of more than you think!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) A reunion of sorts is not to be avoided; you have much to share, and much to do once you realize that you're in this together.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may overhear something that has you wondering if things will ever be the same. You may simply be overreacting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Messages you receive today may not give you the comfort you seek. One or two pieces of information have you considering an unusual option.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strain in a relationship can be lessened today but you'll have to be the first to suggest a solution to a growing problem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A subtle change yields tremendous gains before the day is out, and you may now feel as though you can do almost anything.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may not understand why others are so keen on something that is quite clearly not for you, but such understanding may not be required.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are after something that may be unavailable to you — not just now, but always. It's time to reorder your priorities, perhaps.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your unique perspective has you making a few decisions that others could never make — but the only person you have to answer to is yourself.

Are you Washington's best crafter?

Enter The Post's 3rd Annual

Holiday Craft Contest

Celebrate the spirit of the season and show off your best handmade craft! Submit a photo of your original creation to our contest where judges and readers will choose the best of the best. This year the Local Living section is working with guest judge Nicholas Bell of the Smithsonian American Art Museum's Renwick Gallery.

Your entry can be sewn, woven, knitted, molded with plain paper or papier-mache, or created with any materials you like. It can decorate a tree, hang on a wall, sit on a table or be wearable. It should have a winter holiday or winter-appropriate theme.

The best crafter will win a prize and be featured in The Post's Local Living section in December!

Submissions are due Monday, Dec. 3.

PRIORITIES

New Book on Adele! Media Focuses on 1) Her Weight. 2) Dating. 3) Career? Nah.

Adele told the author of "Adele: The Biography" that "I would only lose weight if it affected my health or sex life, which it doesn't." She jokes that her backup boyfriend, if Simon Konecki doesn't work out, is Prince Harry: "I know I said I wouldn't go out with a ginger. ... I'd love a night out with him — he seems like he'd be a right laugh." (EXPRESS)

NEW CLIENTS

'Lindsay Can't Cry and Has No Remorse! Abort, Abort!'

Lindsay Lohan canceled a "20/20" interview with Barbara Walters slated for this Friday, "Deadline" reported. The PR firm representing Lohan, Rogers & Cowan, is apparently to blame. According to "Deadline," Lohan's new reps weren't comfortable with the direction Walters intended to take the interview. Lohan's Lifetime movie, "Liz & Dick," premieres Nov. 25. (EXPRESS)

The guy on the right realized too late he wasn't photobombing Julianne Moore.

Victims

'Ugh, America. How Common'

A Los Angeles judge on Friday denied Halle Berry's request to move her 4-year-old daughter, Nahla, to France, TMZ.com reported. Nahla's father, model Gabriel Aubry, objected. Berry said France would be a safer place to raise the child due to stronger paparazzi laws. Berry and Aubry split in 2010; Berry is now engaged to actor Olivier Martinez. (EXPRESS)

JASON MERRITT/GETTY IMAGES

"Oh Justin, I'm sorry — I've sexually matured without you. See you around."

APRIL-MAY ROMANCES

Cougar on the Prowl

Justin Bieber and Selena Gomez have split up, according to an unnamed source. The breakup apparently happened last week. Distance and their busy schedules were cited as factors. Bieber, 18, is touring to promote his latest album, "Believe." Gomez, 20, is filming a "Wizards of Waverly Place" reunion for the Disney Channel. The pair made their relationship public in February 2011. On the red carpet of Wednesday's Victoria's Secret fashion show, Bieber said, "I'd rather be here than anywhere in the world." (AP)

WHAT YOUNG MEN WANT

'Rowr! Marry Me and Adore My Three Adult Daughters!'

Demi Moore, who turned 50 on Sunday, has been named "World's Most Coveted Cougar" by dating site Cougarlife.com. "Demi Moore has single-handedly done more for the cougar community than anyone and made significant strides in helping the lifestyle become part of mainstream culture," the founder of Cougarlife.com told Radaronline.com. The site sent Moore a pair of shoes. (EXPRESS)
